AEC Library To Open

Plans are now underway for an Atomic Energy Commission library here at Old Dominion. Because of the efforts of Professor Adams of the physics department and Congressman Porter Hardy, Jr., ODC has been chosen as an AEC depository for the Tidewater area. This means that a special reference room of AEC government documents will be set up for the use of students, scientists, and other interested members of the general public.

According to librarian William C. Pollard, the college already has on hand 96 cartons of documents. However, the AEC room will not be ready for use until sometime during the spring quarter.

Mr. Pollard expects to have approximately 59,762 reports on hand, of which 16,107 are in printed form. The remainder are on microfilm and microcards. Also included in the AEC reference room will be the complete set of an all-important journal, "Nuclear Science Abstracts."
